Current Professional Position

President, Frank A. Ray Co., L.P.A., April 16, 2011 through present – private mediator for a broad range of civil disputes.

After withdrawing from his trial practice in August 2014, Mr. Ray now functions as a private mediator for complex civil cases, including class actions and federal multi-district litigation. For his mediations, he draws on his 41 years of experience as a trial and appellate lawyer. During his trial career, Mr. Ray served as lead counsel for his clients in numerous jury and bench trials involving the following legal categories: business disputes; commercial claims under the UCC; personal and commercial insurance coverages; insurance bad faith claims; catastrophic personal injury and wrongful death claims arising from vehicular collisions, workplace mishaps, aviation disasters, product liability, medical malpractice, and intentional torts; intellectual property rights disputes; will and trust contest claims; defamation claims; condemning authorities' rights and private landowners' rights and compensation in eminent domain proceedings; environmental claims; medical, dental, nursing home, legal, and accounting malpractice claims; employment disputes, representing employers and employees; construction defect claims; enforcement of settlement agreements; and disputes involving professional baseball franchises and Minor League Baseball organizations.
